

Catwoman (New 52 Edition) by Judd Winick

In the new Catwoman she tries to look for them man who killed her best friend, in doing so she gets caught up with another Gotham vigilante. Who also happens to be working with dirty cops.

The comic had beautiful art and design, which only made the dialogue better. The art was very clean, and the chat boxes were easy to follow, providing a better read. I would recommend this book to anyone who is interested in not only their favorite anti – hero, but to people who like a strong female lead. Reading Catwoman comics are sometimes so empowering, she is a woman who can hold her own. Of course, Batman comes to the rescue every now and then, but for the most part she does bad/ good all by herself.

At certain moments of the story you start to feel your heart string pull a little. Catwoman finds herself dealing with a lot of har ache and you start to feel it with her. Not everything she does is good, and this comic is no exception. Everyone makes rash decisions at one point in life that they will inevitably regret. Only difference is that most people don't steal thousands of dollars from dirty cops. But have no fear, because much like an actual cat, she lands on all fours and she gracefully gets herself out of a very sticky situation.

To my surprise our favorite cat finds herself in the company of a certain bat from time to time. It is a nice break to all the heavy topics that are in the comics. It provides a comic relief, but also may leave your cheeks red at some points. So be warned, if you don't mind a few mature scenes and blood this is a great read. I can promise that there isn't a dull moment in this book and when there are parts that seem to be going slow in the next few panels exciting will appear.
