

Gone by Mark Grant

This book is about a group of teens and children who have to figure out a way to survive in a dome after everyone 15 years old and older disappeared when the dome appeared. Many trials and tribulations occur for a specific group of teens who have to care for the younger ones.

I decided to read this book because the story line interested me so much. This book is about surviving in this type of world with no adults or old teenagers. There are also a bunch of children and teens who find out they have “powers” which causes a lot backlash over those who do not have any powers. This is a Dystopian Series and one of the best I have ever read. I was not totally surprised that I liked this book since it seemed so intriguing, although I do not usually prefer books that include powers or the supernatural, I completely enjoyed this book. I could not personally relate to most of the characters or situations in this book since I never went through anything remotely close as what these kids went through, but I think that’s one of the reason this book and this series is so great, It is because in most of these situations, you don’t even know how you would react. You can guess what you would do, but you would never actually know. This book is FULL of surprises and I loved this book. I think that the whole series is amazing and that as you continue reading each of the books, the story progresses in a way that one wouldn’t expect.
